Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 10, 1818.

It is really amusing to see a certain class of people quoting from the works of Cobbett, written during his first residence in the United States. If we felt disposed to bring before the public lightly the abuse of that man during that period, we scarcely think that those editors who have introduced an extract of his against Mr. Harper, would benefit much by having broke the ice. If we indulged in this feeling, we would exclaim in the spirit of a Brabantio,

'We thank thee, Jew, for teaching us that word.'

As for William Cobbett writing pamphlets and making speeches for Mr. Harper, the story is absurd. Not that he could not write as well as Mr. Harper; this is not to be doubted, at least not by us, for we look upon Cobbett as one of the best writers, in his way, of the age. But there was no occasion for his services in the case of Mr. Harper, because this gentleman was as capable of writing and speaking as any man in America; of this Mr. Cobbett himself bears ample testimony, in a thousand places in his works, and it is a singular fact, that he never spoke of Mr. Harper in any terms but those of admiration and eulogy, until after his unsuccessful defence of him in the action brought by Doctor Rush for a libel. This trial was the commencement of his bitterness; disappointment mortified him to the soul, and roused that suspicion which is so peculiarly his characteristic. But the amiable Peter does not say that he composed any speeches for Mr. Harper; he only insinuates that he has been accused of it, and then modestly declares, with a kind of maiden coyness, that he was not entirely innocent of the charge. Now, we venture to say, that all the participation he had in these productions, was making certain corrections at the press, such as every editor does, even in the case of advertisements. But for the sake of the joke, suppose we allow all that Peter Porcupine said, to be gospel; in different parts of his works, "we find it thus written."

"Mr. Harper followed next, and in a "long, eloquent and animated speech, "exposed all the projects of France and "her partisans. It is impossible to give "an abridgement of this speech."—Vol. 6, page 142.

"Munroe, it is said, intends landing "in N. Hampshire, and travelling home "through the eastern states. Cabal and "faction are in his heart; he has been "impregnated by Barras and de la Croix. "Munroe is precisely following Genet's "manœuvres," &c.—Vol. 6, page 12.

"Barras, in his insolent, bombastic "speech, to the meek and suppliant "Munroe, who truly represented not "the good people of America, but a set "of debased and crouching satellites," &c.—Vol. 6, pa. 5.

"Had young Lighning Rod said, your "fore-fathers, the declaration might have "passed without comment; but by saying our fore-fathers, he of necessity "included his crafty and lecherous old "hypocrite of a grand father, whose very statue seems to gloat on the wenches as they walk the state-house yard, "and whose opinions respecting adultery, can be proved, not by vague assertions, but by living witnesses."—Vol. 6, pa. 343, in a note.

"Mr. Wales, father-in-law of Mr. "Jefferson, was an Englishman who owed his fortune to the friendship of Mr. "Farrer and Jones, of Bristol. Mr. "Wales ordered in his will, that previous to any division of his property, the "debt due by him to the heirs of his benefactors, should first be discharged; "but his pious sons in law, instead of "obeying his will, retained the amount "of the debt, till in consequence of an "iniquitous confiscation law passed in "Virginia, they were enabled to pay it "into the treasury of that state, in depreciated paper money. Jefferson was "one of those sons in law. Such is the "man," &c.—Vol. 12, pa. 117, note.

"What conformity do we find between "the sentiments of Mr. Jefferson in matters of religion and those of Tom "Paine? Tom Paine has ridiculed the "holy scriptures, and reprobated public "worship. Tom Jefferson has attempted to disprove the deluge; he made it "a question, whether the Almighty ever "had a chosen people, and has by example and precept discountenanced public "worship."—Vol. 21, pa. 208.

There is not a page, indeed, in which this writer does not introduce, what he calls some damning fact, against some leading republican. It would be well, therefore, for certain editors to drop Peter.

END OF SUMMER.

——"The fading many coloured woods,
Shade deepening over shade, the country round
Imbrown; a crowded umbrage, dusk and dun,
Of every hue, from wan declining green
To sooty black."

"The sun is now taking leave.—Every thing is changed with us. The earth, which was lately so beautiful and fruitful, is now becoming gradually barren and poor. We no longer behold that fine enamel of yet recent in blossom; the charms of the spring; the magnificence of summer; those different tints and shades of verdure in the woods and meads; the purple grapes; nor the golden harvests which crowned our fields. When the earth is stripped of its corn, its grass, and its leaves, nothing is to be seen but a rough and rugged surface. It has no longer that beautiful appearance which the growth of corn, greens and herbs, produced over a vast country. The birds no longer sing. Nothing now recalls to the mind of man that universal joy which reigned throughout all animated nature. He hears nothing now but the murmuring streams and whistling winds. Constantly the same sounds which can only create disagreeable sensations. The fields have lost their perfume; and the air is damp and cold.

"Yet the country, stripped and desert as it is, still presents to a feeling mind the image of happiness. We may recollect with gratitude to Heaven, that the fields which are now barren were once covered with corn and a plentiful harvest. It is true, that the orchards and gardens are now stripped, but the remembrance of what they bestowed upon us, may make us content to bear the northern blasts which at present we feel so sharp. The leaves are fallen from the fruit trees; the grass of the field is withered; the dark clouds fill the sky and fall in heavy rains. The unthinking man complains at this, but the wise man beholds the earth moistened with rain; and beholds it with a sweet satisfaction. The dried leaves and faded grass are prepared by the autumnal rains to form manure to enrich the ground. This reflection, with the pleasing expectation of Spring, must naturally excite our gratitude for the tender mercies of our Creator. Though the earth has lost its beauty and exterior charms, and exposed to the murmurs of those it has nourished and cheered, it has already begun again to labor secretly within its bosom for their future welfare.

"Perhaps our own lot in this world has its seasons: if it be so, let us in the dull winter of life have recourse to the provisions laid up in the days of prosperity; and endeavor to make a good use of the fruits of our education and experience.—Happy, if at the close of life, we carry with us to the grave the merit of having been useful to society."

Sturm's Reflections

THE SHEPHERDS OF THE LANDES.

From the Petersburgh Intelligencer.

Travellers have amused us with accounts of savage tribes so far removed from civilized life as to move or walk on their hands and feet like the brute animal; but this is not so surprising as to be informed that in a district of France the most civilized country in Europe, the inhabitants walk on stilts, which raise them from three to five feet above the surface. This district is called the Landes, and lies in the south of France, between the mouth of the Adoer and the Gironde, along the sea coast, and according to tradition was once the bed of the sea itself, which flowed in as far as Dax. Through this district the British Guards attached to the army of Wellington marched from Bayonne, at the conclusion of the war in June, 1814, to embark for Bordeaux. An officer of the Guards has published an account of the singular inhabitants of this part of France seldom visited by travellers.—The men generally lead the life of the Shepherd, but the women as well as the men always walk on stilts, striding over the earth like storks. These stilts are made in the following manner. The foot rests on a surface adapted to its sole, carved out of the solid wood, and from three to five feet above the ground. A flat part shaped to the outside of the Leg, and reaching to below the end of the knee, is strapped round the calf and ankle. The foot is covered by a piece of raw sheep's hide. In these stilts they move with perfect freedom, and astonishing rapidity; and they have their balance so completely, that they run, jump, stoop, and even dance, with ease and safety. The habit of using the stilts is acquired early, and it appears that the smaller the boy or girl is the longer it is necessary to have his stilts. By means of these odd additions to the natural leg, the feet are kept out of the water, which lies deep during the winter on the sand, and from the heated sand during the summer; in addition to which the sphere of vision over so perfect a flat is materially increased by the elevation, and the shepherd can see his sheep much farther on stilts than he could on the ground.

From the Ky. (Lexington) Gazette, of October 23.

We state with great pleasure, that a company is forming in Lexington, and measures are in train for adoption, for the purpose of purchasing the TOBACCO of the surrounding country, delivered and inspected in this place. The capital is amply sufficient, and will be used, to buy all the Tobacco that can be bro't to this depot; and the object of the arrangements now making is to ensure to the farmers of this and the neighbouring counties a certain market for their crops, and the highest prices which can be given any where in the upper country.

Some of our citizens are already interested in steam boats, and others are actually engaged in building one for the New-Orleans trade. Our town, as yet one of the most important in the west, must, under the proposed plan, prosper as rapidly as in its proudest days, and enable the growers of the staple products of the country, promptly to realize the rewards of their labour.

THE INDIANS.

Copy of a letter from Mr. John M'Neal, to the War Department.

River Black Warrior, Tuskaloosa City, Alabama Territory, Sept. 22d.

Honoured Sir—I hasten to lay before your department some statements relative to the late battle fought with a band of Indians, consisting of 70 warriors, and their women and children. From the best information that I have received, they are a remnant of the hostile Creeks, who, on finding they could no longer be protected in Florida, lately applied to the Chickasaw tribe for land to settle on; but, being denied, they formed a resolution to fight their way through our settlements, over the Mississippi, where, they were told by the Chickasaws, they could get land. In order to execute their design, they crossed the rivers Alabama and Cahaba, and on their way to the Warrior they killed two white men and three Choctaws. On reaching this river, at a place called Cornel's Settlement, they committed several outrages on our citizens, and murdered some of the family of a Mr. Hall. They then steered their course for this place. Having received intelligence of their approach, on the 16th inst. sixteen of our most enterprizing men armed themselves, and chose Major S. Taylor and myself to command them. We were joined by Capt. Bacon & fourteen men. Being thus united, we went in pursuit, and, having met with their trail, we followed it through swamps and cane brakes, heretofore thought to be impenetrable, until we found where they had crossed the Warrior, 8 miles below the falls. After crossing, and marching four miles, through the most dreadful swamps and cane brakes, and being separated from capt. Bacon's command, we discovered the enemy encamped in a Beaver dam, well fortified by nature, there being a thick cane brake on the right, and a thick bluff on the left. They no sooner saw us, than they raised the war hoop, and prepared for action. We then gave orders to charge on them, which was done with the spirit of true Americans, and 8 or 10 of their warriors were laid dead on the ground. We then retreated and loaded our guns; and, having formed again on the entrance of the encampment, we were reinforced by capt. Bacon and part of his men. A smart skirmish was kept up for 30 minutes, during which time we killed 6 or 8 more of the enemy; but finding they were endeavouring to outflank us, a retreat was ordered, which was effected without any molestation. We lost two brave men, killed in the contest, and had one badly wounded; the loss of the enemy was not less than 15 killed, and several wounded. On the 17th, eighteen of us went to the battle ground to bury our dead; but, on finding that the enemy had not left their strong hold, we withdrew. On the 19th, with a more formidable force, we again proceeded in quest of our enemy, & after patrolling the swamps and cane brakes, it was discovered they had fled towards the river Sipsy.—We then buried our dead, and returned to our respective abodes. On the same day Col. T. Hunter, with 110 mounted men, set off in pursuit of them, and, coming up with their rear, killed one of their warriors. They have taken their flight towards the borders of the Choctaws, who are apprised of their approach, and will, I trust, soon give a good account of them.

My reasons for making this communication to your department is, in consequence of our having acted without any kind of orders, solely from self preservation. Should it meet the approbation of government, I shall feel happy in having rendered my country the smallest service; if not, I hope it will be attributed to my want of skill, and not to the lack of good will to be of service to my fellow citizens in general.

I have the honour to be, your most obedient servant,

JOHN M'NEAL,
Formerly a Lieutenant of the 45d U. S. I.

FATAL QUARREL.

On Saturday last, Francis Day and John Rutter, of Brandywine, who were gunning together on or near Cherry Island Marsh, had a quarrel on some account; and Rutter after having threatened to shoot Day, executed his horrid menace, and left his victim weltering in blood without assistance, till some casual passengers found him and conveyed him to Brandywine village. His arm was shattered to pieces, and his side lacerated, which caused his death before day the next morning. A Coroner's Inquest has pronounced a verdict of wilful murder, and on Monday, Rutter was committed to prison at Newcastle.

Del. Watch.

The steam-boat, which originated in America, is displaying its powers on almost every coast of the eastern world.—We observe by the late English papers, that they are employed in the Mediterranean.—One at Naples, which is to ply from Naples to Palermo, was launched in June last.—She is a beautiful packet of 240 tons, and 120 feet in length. It is in vain for the human imagination to define the limits or the uses to which this magnificent invention is destined to be applied. It is perhaps almost as much in its infancy as sail and square rigged vessels were seven centuries ago.

Extract of a letter to J. C. Dulce, Esq. proprietor of the "Charleston Times," dated

"HAVANA, 20th Sept. 1818.

"You will suppose, that after such a lapse of time, something must have occurred amongst us worth communication, but we are really without any thing new, arrivals take place almost weekly from Cadiz, but not a word is said of the Floridas.

"Business is getting a little brisker with us, though our market does not improve for American produce. I have merely time to quote you the current prices. But few cases of Fever have occurred lately, and our city is becoming more healthy.

"The prospect for the coming crop of Coffee is such as to exhilirate all those who are engaged in the culture of it. It bears a price now which surpasses any thing of the kind ever known here.—White Coffee at $28, Green $30; and what is more wonderful, it is purchased at these prices. Contracts are really made, and making for the next crop, deliverable in January, February and March at 17 and 20 dollars. The Crop will be large, notwithstanding considerable was lost by the failure of rain in the month of May last, and a sparing supply through the season.—However, plantations that did not produce 600 arrobes last year, will yield 4000 this year; a very considerable difference, though we are of opinion that it will not go lower than 22 and 23 dollars,

ST. PETERSBURGH, Aug. 6.

The rain which prevailed in June, and the heat which succeeded, gave us the fairest prospect of an abundant harvest.

Daniel Wheeler, a Quaker, distinguished by his good character, religious way of thinking, and knowledge of agriculture, has lately arrived here from England, in consequence of a previous invitation. His principal employment will be to drain the bogs in the neighborhood of the capital, to make them fit for tillage and to dig the turf, (or peate,) which has not hitherto been turned to any use.—The Emperor has not only signified his approbation of the undertaking, but assured the said D. Wheeler of his favor, but he has also assigned him a salary of £500 sterling per annum, and the sum of 25,000 roubles for the first beginning towards the expense of the work, and a detachment of pioneers to dig ditches, &c. His Majesty has confined it to the special care of M. Von Kosodowloff, Minister of the Interior, and Prince Galitzin, Minister of National Instruction. It is to be expected that the undertaking will be attended with complete success.

PITTSBURGH.

Tuesday Morning, Nov. 10

IT is curious to observe the different opinions and views entertained by different people of the objects for which the Bank of the United States was established. Your Philadelphia merchant declares it could only have been intended for the purposes of commerce, and that it is folly to view it in any other light.—The western store-keeper hailed its creation as the great remedy for the difference of exchange, and roundly asserts this effect was pledged on the floor of Congress. The honest farmer, who like Moliere's Harpagon, likes "to touch something real," dwelt with satisfaction on the pleasing hope that the lovely paper to be issued by this institution, could at any time be converted into gold by the necromantic finger of a cashier. Now, for our part, whatever might have been the meaning of government in this business, we humbly conceive, that those worthy citizens, 'ycleept original stockholders, had quite a different notion of the subject. We lay it down as an incontrovertible fact, that our countrymen are the most enlightened, and most patriotic folks upon the whole ball of earth; but notwithstanding all this, we will pit them, for driving a bargain, or looking ahead against Holland, England, and all the bald headed Hong merchants the city of Canton ever produced. In seizing upon the stock then of the national bank as soon as it appeared in market, they calculated very much in the same way that our semi-annual visitors to the cities do, when they buy their cloth & calicoe. "This article costs one hundred dollars in Philadelphia; after we give it a little of the mountain air, and exhibit it in Pittsburgh, it will bring us one hundred & thirty three dollars, barring accidents, and "errors excepted." So reasoned our stockholders; "for every hundred dollars we subscribe for at the opening of the books, we will receive forty dollars clear gain, provided we sell out in time." And most of the wise ones did sell out in time, and made a tolerable sum out of it. Viewing it as a fiscal expedient, government of course will be able to draw that portion of benefit from it which probably was calculated upon on its establishment; in other respects, it will be very much like other banks, and its directors will strive very hard every year to—declare as high a dividend as possible.

We were frequently surprised to see with what anxiety a certain class of our community looked forward to the establishment of branches in the west; albeit not much used to these kind of matters, we did not exactly comprehend how they were to be of such peculiar advantage to the country. "They will equalize the exchange," was the universal cry. So they would, if their notes were receivable at the mother bank; but in the name of common sense where would be the use of branches if this were the case? The mother bank to make arrangements for the issues of twenty of her children? the thing is preposterous, and no man of understanding ought to have indulged in the dream for a moment. She did commence in this way, to be sure, but not from any of the patriotic motives contemplated by those not behind the curtain. The old lady, when the treasure was new, over which she sat brooding, in the commencement of the business, chuckled at the idea of being able to eradicate country banks, by continuing this imprudent, impracticable step. But these lingered longer in expiring agonies than she at first calculated upon, and she was forced to withdraw and flutter round her own nest to protect it from the vermin of her own neighbourhood. Viewing the conduct in this case in the light we do, we consider it as deserving severe reprehension. There was not the slightest reason for commencing taking the branch notes: they were not bound by law, nor by reason. The world would never have tho't of such a thing, if it had not been drawn into the delusion by the bank itself. The attempt to destroy other banks was futile; the wish to injure them was ungenerous. The property of individuals was embarked in them to a large amount, and under this impression, had she even been armed with the Briarean power, which at first was fancifully imputed to her, she ought to have addressed them, as Sterne did the fly, "there is room enough for us all."

PRESIDENT'S GLASS.

During a visit a few evenings ago to the manufactory of Messrs Bakewells' & Page, we were much gratified by a sight of the splendid equipage of glass, intended for Mr. Munroe's sideboard. It consists of a full set of Decanters, Wine Glasses and Tumblers of various sizes, and different models, exhibiting a brilliant specimen of double flint, engraved and cut by Jardelle. This able artist has displayed his best manner, and the arms of the U. States on each piece have a fine effect. The glass itself must either have been selected with great care, or the spirited proprietors must have made considerable progress lately in their art, for we seldom have seen any samples so perfectly pellucid and free from tinct. Upon the whole we think the present service, equal, if not superior to the elegant Decanters presented to the President when he passed through Pittsburgh last year.

It affords us a most sensible gratification that the patriotic liberality of Mr. Munroe will give us the opportunity of being known to the world, as proficients in some of the most delicate branches of manufactures; as regards cloth, iron ware, and the common productions in glass, we consider our reputation as long established; we may now calculate upon encreasing this reputation by the addition of the branch of chrystal glass, since such a man as James Munroe looks to Pittsburgh for this article. We cannot forbear congratulating Messrs. Bakewell & Page on the occasion; their meritorious struggles are at length crowned with partial success; may the policy to be adopted by our government be such as, at no very distant day, to ensure them that reward, which their urbanity, enterprize and industry merit, and may the "glass that sparkles" on the President's 'board operate as a talisman on our representatives, to stimulate them to unremitting exertions in favour of manufactures.

We too can raise Pumpkins

The farmers in the vicinity of Pittsburgh are resolved that we shall be outdone in nothing. The papers from the eastward have lately contained many accounts of mammoth productions in the vegetable world; those of the pumpkin class are the most conspicuous. We have at length the satisfaction of announcing that our market house was on Wednesday last the scene for the exhibition of one of no vulgar weight or dimensions. It weighed one hundred forty pounds some ounces! Mr. Montooth, on whose ground it was produced, declares, that it grew among his corn, without any attention more than was paid to the rest of the field.

Speaking of large pumpkins, puts us in mind (as Caleb Quotem says) of having a little more room in our market house. Two or three such pumpkins, a mammoth ox or two, and a wet morning, would throw us into inextricable confusion. To be serious, we humbly beg the existing rulers of our city to take into consideration the propriety of extending our ma ket. It is becoming intolerable, and if we be blessed with our usual ratio of increase, the evil will be getting greater every day. Even at this time, if the morning happens to be raining, we are obliged to move in mass, to make any progress at all. As for any separate and individual power of locomotion it is out of the question. Now, however we may admire a squeeze in a drawing room; however willing we may be to submit to torture in a place where fashion ordains it, we have no idea of being jammed to a jelly in a market house. The thing is particularly disagreeable on our return voyage, with a basket of eggs dangling from one arm, and a kettle of butter from the other. We are always in imminent danger of having a week's collection of small change demolished in an instant.—By encircling the court house, and making use of the ground on the west side of it, we should have ample room, encrease our comfort, and add to the uniformity of the public square.

Extract of a letter from a French gentlemen dated, Melun, in France, to one of the editors of this paper.

"Do you still contemplate retiring to the country? it is only in that situation, and in your happy country, that one can enjoy a tranquil life. The existing condition of our wretched France, the miserable state of our commerce, & the magnitude of the imposts with which we are loaded, make me regret more and more the part I have chosen; my thoughts often transport me to the banks of the Ohio, and to that Kentucky, of which you and all the world have spoken so favourably. But why do I think of it, since the situation of my family has made me renounce it, probably forever?"

NEW-YORK, Oct. 27.

THE MISTAKES OF A NIGHT.

Amongst the prisoners brought up by the watch, to the Police-Office, a few mornings ago, was a young man, accused of an assault and battery on nearly all the inhabitants of a house, including his own wife. He opened a most earnest and clamorous defence, by assuring the justice that the whole affair was a mistake. "I married her, please your honour, altogether in a mistake. I only seen her for the first time, in all my life, about two hours before I married her, so, to be sure, you see that was a mistake. Then I found out that she had a child by another man, was not that a pritty mistake of hers? And, bekase I would not agree to it, they all fell on me, but I soon made them to know that they were mistaken altogether, and now they want to get me into bridewell, but I hope your honour wont be after such a mistake as that, for it would bother me to get over it, that would be the worst mistake than all."

[Columbian.

Among the pleasing curiosities at the late Cattle Show and fair at Hartford, Con. was a pair of last spring Calves drawing a little cart, in which were two young Brothers seated much at their ease, and driving the little animals to the Fair, they were under perfect command, and performed wonders in drawing great numbers of boys about the show ground, and we are happy to learn that the boys (who are poor but industrious) received in small charities sufficient to reward them well for their trouble. The driver was about eight years of oge.

CRYSTALLIZATION OF TIN.

This new art was we are informed, discovered accidentally about three years ago, in France, by a Monsieur Bagot, who gave it the name of Morie Metallique or Metallic Watering. Another Frenchman, near Brussels, however, contests the palm of originality; and, in truth, the principle has long been one of the least secrets either in chemistry or metallurgy, though we believe it usual application entirely new. It depends simply upon the action of acids, whether pure or mixed, and in different degrees of solution, on alloys of Tin. The common Vitriolic Acid, we believe, answers the purpose as fully as any other more expensive acid agent. The process we find described in the public prints as follow: "Dissolve 4 ounces of Muriate of Soda in eight ounces of water, and add two ounces of Nitric Acid:—or 8 oz. Water, 2 oz. Nitric Acid and 3 oz. Muriatic Acid:—or 3 oz. Water, 2 oz. Muriatic Acid, and 1 oz. Sulphuric Acid. Either of these mixtures is to be poured warm upon a sheet of tinned iron, placed upon a vessel of stone ware; it is to be poured on in separate portions, till the sheet is completely watered; it is then to be plunged into water, slightly accidulated and washed. The operation is completed by drying.

The meanest tin pan in our kitchens, submitted to this easy process, instead of its pallid metallic surface, imitates mother of pearl in its tone of colour, and shoots forth into an infinitude of figures and reflections, equal to enamel, and full of rich variety in design. By subjecting the iron to different degrees of heat the variety of the forms is increased; some parts are granular; others are like architectural ruins; others grand natural phenomena of wood, and mountain, and cataract; others a silvery sunset darting rays along the expanse; others simple leaves and flowers; others cubes, cones, and all that geometry embraces; in fine there is no shape which the imagination can conceive that accident may not produce in those exquisite sports of the chemical power.

MAMMOTH BONE.

It may be seen in the PICTURE OF CINCINNATI, from the 58th to the 73d page, that a variety of bodies, naturally foreign to the soil, have been discovered in the alluvial plain on which our town is erected. Among these at the time the above work was written, there does not seem to have been but a single fragment of the Mammoth. This we are told was a joint of the back bone, which was burried in gravel about 12 feet beneath the surface, between Main and Sycamore street, a little north of Market street. About 4 0 feet east of this spot, some cartmen last week discovered a very large bone, which is judged to be the thigh bone of the same animal. It was embedded in sand forty feet beneath the surface. A portion of it five feet in length, was laid bare, the thickest part of which measured 24 inches. An apprehension that the superincumbent grave might fall, prevented the excavation necessary for the full developement of this gigantick relick.

We are disposed to think with the author of the work just quoted, that this as well as the vegetable & animal remains which have been found at various depths, from 10 to 90 feet beneath our soil, were washed and floated hither, at some remote, antecedent period; and deposited with the gravel, sand, rolled pebbles and clay, which compose the extensive plains on which we are located.

N. B. Part of the bone above mentioned, is in the possession of Mr. John H. Piatt, and may be seen at this office.

Capt. Mitchell, of the schr. Eagle, in 15 days from Cape Henry, (Hayti) who arrived at Newburyport on the 27th inst. reports that in consequence of the citadel being blown up, and the men from the Cape and from all the plantations, (both rich and poor) being ordered to rebuild the same, the produce of the Island is at present extremely scarce and high, and will probably continue so for some time. Ibid.

From the Newbern (N. C.) Centinel.

Daring Robbery of the State Bank. On the examination of the funds yesterday morning, the Cashier of the Branch Bank in this place found that more than a thousand dollars had been taken, during the preceding night, from a drawer he peposited in the vault that evening. The foundation of the vault is of solid brick, and its interior is entirely lined with massy iron gratings, which remained perfectly uninjured. It was ascertained also, after rigid scrutiny, that not a bolt had been forced back in a single door that led to it. The robbery was however evident, and a thousand speculations were offered to account for its feasibility, maugre walls, bars or bolts, when a mouse nest was accidentally discovered behind a chest of specie, entirely composed of hundred dollar notes. The authors of this unprecedented outrage, fortunately for their lives had decamped on the first alarm; but the publick are earnestly cautioned to be on their guard against them, as they are old offenders, and perfectly adepts in their business.

ROMANTICK MONARCH.

Curious account of Gustavus the ex-king of Sweden.

The same sanguine temperament which lost for his majesty his throne, has now converted him into a fantastical Quixotte; alternately projecting pilgrimages and crusades, and relaxing his stout heart before the first petty Burgeoise in which his imagination sees a damsel of romance. Bales is the present scene of his majesty's exploits, whence he sent not long ago to his queen a sentence of divorce, procuring it without the least pretence of ill conduct on her part. His susceptible heart fell into the chains of a fair banker's daughter, whose friends were not quite pleased with the nature of his majesty's attention and his proposal of a marriage with the left hand by no means satified them. The count Gottorp, however, valiently persisted in his overtures, and at last procured the opportunity of indulging his chivalrous propensities in a single combat with his fair one's uncle. The impression of the banker's daughter was indelible. Carolina used to appear to him in visions in various attitudes and shapes—sometimes strangely confounded in appearance with a princess of Mecklenburg, with whom his majesty had once been on the point of marriage. One day the disconsolate lover, partly on the strength of an invitation to England from the Prince Regent, took resolution to depart. The hour arrived, the post horses were at the door, and the royal lover ready to step into the carriage when Caroline's little lapdog which had always before been rather shy of his majesty's caresses presented itself at the coach door, and laid hold of his coat. This had too much the air of an embassy from his relenting fair one not to melt at once the king's feeble resolution. The Prince Regent's invitation was forgotten, the post-horses sent away, and the monarch returned to his pursuit with his courage renovated by the lapdog's caresses.—London paper.

300 Dollars Reward.

ABSCONDED from our store, on the night of the 22d inst. GEORGE R. ROBERTSON, who was employed by us as a clerk. He is between 24 and 27 years of age, about 5 feet 11 inches high, slender made, thin visage, aquiline nose, fair complexion, hazle eyes, high forehead and prominent cheek bones; his teeth in front considerably decayed; he is an Englishman by birth, said to be born in Liverpool. The said Robertson is well educated, and converses with considerable ease on most subjects. He is very genteel in his manner and person, and was for some time (we have understood) an officer in the British service. He took from our Cash drawer about $520 in current bank notes and gold, with the following notes of hand, and drafts, viz. Prospect K. Robbins' note for $600 85 cents due the 28th November next—ditto ditto for the same amount due the 28th January, 1819. John Campbell's note for $560, due 15th June, 1819, Mr. Pettus's note for $65, given to Thomas Rector, and by him transferred to us. Thomas W. Thruston's note for $30. John Bevins' note for $111, given to Henry L. Mills, and by him transferred to us, due first January 1819. A draft drawn by a Dr. Tealing in our favor on a Mr. Jackson of Baltimore, payable 60 days after date for two hundred dollars.

He is suspected of having taken a Pocket-book belonging to Mr. John Little of this place, which contained the following notes, with sundry other papers not recollected, viz. One note given by — M'Nair to J. Little payable and negociable at the Bank of Missouri, for $502 12 cents. One ditto Joseph M'Coy for $90 payable to T. Hanley—and one ditto L. Lawless for 300 dollars payable to J. Little. These were taken a short time since, and he no doubt will forge a transfer of them as well as of those he has taken from us, & atttempt to pass them, as having been endorsed to him.

The above reward will be given and all reasonable expences paid to any person who will apprehend the said George R. Robertson, and deliver him to us in St. Louis, or one hundred dollars to any one apprehending and confining him in prison so that we may be able to bring him to justice and have him punished for the violent outrage he has committed.
HENRY W. CONWAY, & CO.
St. Louis, September 21, 1818.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RANAWAY from the subscriber, living in Pittsburgh, on the 19th of October last, a Negro boy named JOHN FISHER. He is about 5 feet eight or nine inches high, round shouldered, large lips, a down look and stutters very much if harshly spoken to. He took with him a Brindle Bull Dog, and his cloathing is a blue Coattee, a white Jacket, a pair of velvet Overalls, and a fur Hat. Whoever takes up said runaway and delivers him to the subscriber shall have the above reward: or ten dollars for apprehending and confining him in any jail in the United States, so that his master may get him again. He was raised in Fayette County, State of Kentucky.

SONG.

Oh lady breathe those notes again
Again exert that precious art,
Which binds the ear in magic chain,
And wakes to love the slumb'ring heart.

Not half so sweet the dying gale,
That breathes o'er vilets e'er they fade,
Not half so soft the moonlight pale,
That glances trembling through the glade.

Then lady breathe once more that strain,
Of soul entrancing melody
Oh! who could think of grief or pain,
While blest with seeing—hearing thee.

From the OLIO of a Desultory Reader

The women of Lima are generally of a middling stature, handsome, and genteel, with a remarkable lustre in their eyes; and the charms of their persons are considerably heightened by those of the mind, as they have clear and comprehensive intellects, with an easy and graceful behaviour that commands both love and respect; but they are so fond of perfumes that they constantly carry ambergrise about them, and, not content with the natural fragrance of flowers, of which they are likewise extremely fond, scatter perfumes even on their nosegays. The most beautiful flowers they place in their hair, and those most esteemed, for their fragrance, they stick in their sleeves.—Hence the effluvia issuing from these ladies reach to a considerable distance.—The lower class of women, even to the very negroes, endeavour as much as possible, to imitate their superiors in the fashion and richness of their dress; and their cleanliness is observable in the extraordinary neatness of their houses. They are naturally gay sprightly, and jocose, without levity, remarkably fond of music, and have, in general, very good voices.

FOR SALE.

Plumpsock Iron Works.

WITH about 350 acres of land belonging thereto, will be offered for sale by public vendue, if not previously sold at private sale, on Tuesday, the 18th day of August next, at the Court House, in the borough of Uniontown. This establishment consists of a forge, rolling mill, grist and saw mills. Also, a large brick dwelling house, furnished in a handsome style, with many other dwellings for the accommodation of workmen, and extensive stabling. It is situate in Fayette county, state of Pennsylvania, in the midst of a highly cultivated country on the state road, nine miles east of Brownsville, on the Monongahela river, and the like distance of Connellsville on the Youghiogheny river, five miles northwest of Uniontown, and thirty nine from the city of Pittsburgh. Bar iron is made in this forge by rolling instead of hammering, of a superior quality. Stone coal is the only fuel used in making it, an inexhaustible pit of which is within one hundred yards of the forge. Three men with a horse and cart are sufficient to raise, coke and haul to the forge all the coal necessary for keeping the works in full operation. They are in good order, the machinery almost new. This property is perhaps the most valuable of its kind in the United States, and by suitable attention, it is believed, may be made the most profitable in its operations.

There will be sold also, at the same time and place, the following

HOUSES AND LOTS

situate in the borough of Union, to wit:

1. The corner house and lot of ground situate on the north side of Elbow street, immediately east of the Court House, No. 20, being the most eligible as well as the most valuable lot of ground in town.

2. That large House and lot of ground No. 3, and part of the adjoining lot, on the west or the north side of Elbow street, in the occupancy of Cuthbert Wiggins as a tavern stand, fronting on said street about one hundred and thirteen feet.

To Tanners Distillers, & Farmers.

THE subscriber assignee of JARED OLDS's PATENTED IRON MILL for Grinding Bark, Corn and Cobb, &c. for the States of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, informs the public that they are made and kept for sale by Mr. GEORGE SUTTON, who is sole agent in Pittsburgh to sell Mills in those states, their utility in grinding bark is well known and established to be the best in use. To Distillers they answer a valuable purpose to grind corn and grind the cobb, and by distilling the cobb it is found to make a saving of about one fifth of this method.—To Farmers, to grind feed for cattle, the mill will crack nearly all the corn and grind the cobb quite fine.—There are a considerable number of those mills in use for that purpose, and are highly approved of—Millers and Farmers in the above states are solicited to make trial of them.—I will warrant them to answer the purpose as described.

Orders for mills will be attended to by Mr. George Sutton, where they can only be had in Pittsburgh, and will be by him forwarded.

For the information of the public I give the NOTICE.

That all mills, sold in the above states by agents of Luther Gale, is an infringement on my right, nor has there any of Gales's mills been sold or used in the western country for grinding bark to my knowledge. Jared Olds' improvement consists of an Iron hopper cast solid on the cylinder or tube and cogs or sharp pointed teeth placed in rows on the inside of the mill. Therefore forbid all persons from making, using or selling mills of the above description in Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, without authority from myself or Alvin Bates and our agents, as all persons found violating said patent, may rest assured that sooner or later they will pay us for our right, if there is law and justice to recover it
